Pathways by which the choice of reanalysis product affects projected climate impacts

The chosen reanalysis interacts with analyst-side modelling choices to produce a dose-response $D(T)$; nonlinearity amplifies tail differences when projecting impacts at a given Global Warming Level (GWL).

